

Dear Innovator,

When we launched Vande Bharatam, we believed that extraordinary ideas existed in every corner of our country.

You have proved us right.

Over the past few weeks, more than 25,000 ideas have reached us from across cities, villages, classrooms and laboratories, students and homemakers alike and spanning technology, agriculture, healthcare, education, manufacturing, climate, mobility, defence and digital innovation, among countless other fields. Again and again, we have seen ideas rooted in local challenges but capable of national, even global, impact.

Each one reflects a vision of how Bharat can move forward. Read together, they do not just show talent. They show a country thinking, in every direction at once, about itself.

This is the first edition of Vande Bharatam. Every enduring institution begins with a first step. You chose to take that step with us. Whatever Vande Bharatam may become in the years ahead, it will always be built on the belief that twenty-five thousand of you put in this initiative.

To those who will join us in Ahmedabad, I look forward to hearing these ideas first-hand and thanking as many of you as I can in person for the trust you have placed in this beginning.

To everyone else, this is only the beginning. Vande Bharatam is not meant to be a one-time event. It is a commitment to discovering, nurturing and celebrating the innovators and entrepreneurs who will build tomorrow's Bharat.

Thank you for believing in this vision.

More importantly, thank you for believing in the power of your own idea.

The future of our nation will be built by people who dare to imagine it first and then have the courage to build it.

With gratitude and admiration,

Gautam Adani
